Description

Pair of antique silver candelabra with detachable three-light branches, made in the neoclassical style during the reign of King George III at the end of the 18th century. This fine pair of silver candelabra, is made by John Schofield of cast construction and are therefore of the finest quality.

These three-light silver candelabra exhibit the typical, elegant design of the era; tapering stems, thread pattern borders and fluted mounts. The branches are detachable enabling the silver candlesticks to be used separately and the nozzles or wax drips are removable to assist with cleaning.

This beautiful pair of Georgian silver candelabra are not available to purchase online. Please contact us if you would like more information or are interested to buy them.
