Description

These elegant Regency style candelabra are of extremely high quality and made by George and Henry Elkington who patented the first commercial electroplating process in 1841. Most sections of these candelabra are cast and hand chased, and the branches and nozzles are detachable for easy cleaning. This design incorporates classical Roman and Greek influences, finely detailed acanthus leaves, tapering fluted columns and lattice patterns around the base.

Each candelabrum is engraved with a family crest and motto SIS JUSTUS NECTIMEAS - Be Just & Fear Not - which can be attributed to the Garvey family of Ireland.
