Description

Large capacity silver café au lait set in a tapering cylindrical design with domed covers that would have been popular in the era of Queen Anne in the early 18th century. Both the silver coffee pot and the silver hot milk jug are fitted with elegant, ebonised handles and finials.

Café au lait is a drink that's been popular in Europe for centuries. Translating as coffee with milk, café au lait is generally considered to be made with coffee and steamed or hot milk.
