Description

Made in the mid Victorian era, this is an elegant handmade sterling silver teapot with oval, tapering and half fluted body and slightly domed hinged cover. The handle and removable finial are made from fruit wood, probably apple or pear.

Being a handmade piece the teapot's quality shines. The extra attention to detail is reflected in the hidden, flat, jeweller's hinge; a sign of superior quality. Many lesser quality pots would have the hinge mounted on top of the cover which is a less costly way of fitting.

Most important of all, the teapot pours beautifully, with dripping.

Capacity: 1 pint (583 ml) = four to five cups of your favourite tea - Darjeeling, Ceylon, Yorkshire, Oolong!
