Description

Handmade Britannia standard silver salver of panelled form, and with a deep hand-raised border and mounted on four bar supports. Fashioned in a style first made popular in England at the beginning of the 18th century during the reign of Queen Anne, the shape and bar feet also give this a distinctly Art Deco character.

Made by premier makers, Wakely & Wheeler for Bulgari, this salver or shallow dish is an excellent size to be used as a drinks tray, serve canapes, or for a special presentation.

Britannia silver is a high-grade alloy of silver which has a purity of 95.8% (by weight), with the additional component being copper. The silver content is higher than sterling silver (92.5%) so the metal is softer and more malleable. Today Britannia silver is mostly reserved for creating special commissions.
