Description

Fine antique lidded silver half-pint ankard from the Edwardian period that is a faithful recreation of a Queen Anne style that would have been popular circa 1710. The tapering body has moulded decorative bands around the base and the strong and comfortable handle is surmounted by a cast, openwork thumbpiece attached to the lid.

This lovely tankard has a capacity of 300ml and is presented in its original velvet-lined leather case. It would make an excellent coming-of-age gift.
